Seena Samimi's practice focuses on complex disputes involving real property, land use, and environmental law.

His clients turn to him in their high-end residential, commercial, industrial, and mixed-use projects across California to navigate complex legal issues, and when needed, defend them against contentious neighbors, vocal community groups, and aggressive regulatory agencies.

With over two decades of experience, Seena brings a broad perspective shaped by hands-on expertise and diverse roles from both sides of the courtroom. He has served as outside counsel to cities and counties, advised major corporations, and acted as general counsel for a global construction company overseeing critical infrastructure projects. Seena secured essential environmental approvals for the largest desalination plant in the United States and has advised on major international developments, including a high-profile project in Santiago, Chile, at the base of the Andes.

Seena handles litigation and appeals across real estate, land use, environmental, and government agency law – including cases involving cannabis regulation and the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA). In addition, Seena handles a wide range of real property issues for high-net-worth clients arising from neighbor disputes, enforcement of covenants and easements, nuisance abatement, code enforcement, permitting, and zoning disputes.

Known for his practical, strategic approach, Seena helps clients protect their investments, resolve tough disputes, and succeed in and out of court.
